REFUSES TO ABDICATE KINKEAD WILL ACT IN THE DEIGLE TRIAL

Columbus Judge Will Ignore the Affidavit of Bias and Prejudice and Comes Back at the Accused Legislative Employee in No Unmistakable Language.

CALLS HIS CHARGES "SILLY"

Affidavits Charging Prejudice in Bribery Trials and Answer Thereto in Hands of Judge Goldsberry at Chillicothe—Defendants Will Concentrate Energies Against Testimony of Dictagraph and Detectives. Trials May Not Be Long Delayed.

Columbus, O., June 17.—Judge E. B. Kinkead, presiding in the criminal branch of common pleas court, filed an affidavit with the county clerk in which he denies all the charges of prejudice alleged against him in an affidavit filed by Rodney J. Diegel, charged with being a go-between for legislative grafters. He also declared that the whole proceeding was so silly that he will not demand a hearing in open court.

The Kinkead affidavit was sent to Judge Goldsberry at Chillicothe, who has the Diegel affidavit under consideration, accompanied by a request from Judge Kinkead that he determine the issue upon these records alone. Thus Judge Kinkead waives his right to a full hearing.

In the event that Judge Goldsberry renders his decision today, or even Monday, it now seems highly probable that Diegel may go on trial Monday whether or not Judge Kinkead is declared incompetent to serve.

It is said that the attorneys for the defense in all the bribery cases are planning to knock out the testimony of the Burns detectives and dictagraph which the prosecution claims acted as a mechanical aid in the taking of a stenographic report of the alleged conferences between the detectives and legislators in the Chittenden hotel.

Dispute Dictagraph Testimony.

The action of Diegel in filing an affidavit of prejudice against Judge Kinkead is said to be the first move in the campaign for delay and for the securing of a new judge to try all the cases. In the event that Judge Kinkead is declared incompetent to serve or is sustained, a demurrer will be filed to the indictment on the ground that the dictagraph records are not sufficient to return indictments and that the Chittenden hotel conferences between detectives and alleged bribe-takers do not constitute a crime.

If Diegel's affidavit is upheld by Judge Goldsberry, it is hoped by all the defendants in the bribery cases that the advent of the summer recess will cause all the other cases to go over to the September term. Attorney General Hogan and prosecuting Attorney Turner are making preparations for a determined fight against delay.

Five Drowned At Pittsburg

Pittsburg, June 17.—By the capsizing of a motor boat and a canoe in the Allegheny river, four men and one woman lost their lives. One man was rescued, but not until after he had battled against death in the current for nearly an hour.

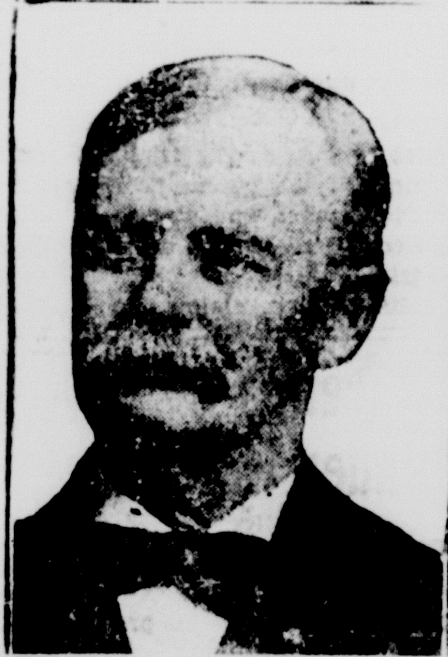

Sure-Thing Man Sentenced.

Montreal, June 17.—Five years' imprisonment at hard labor was the sentence imposed by Justice Langlois on Charles O. Sheldon, the promoter, convicted of robbing persons whom he influenced to invest their money in a discretionary pool plan. It was alleged that Sheldon got away with more than a million dollars.

Slays His Wife's Admirer

Pittsburg, Pa., June 17.—Gabriel Bernard emptied his revolver and killed Andrew Sipka, his wife's admirer, in a crowded downtown street. Bernard ran after Sipka, firing shot after shot, until he brought his man down. He then attacked and finished his enemy with a knife.

Chicago, Long on Murders.
Chicago, June 17.—Figures printed here show that there have been 22 murders in Chicago in the 691 days that have lapsed since a man was hanged. In addition there have been 548 homicides.

Boy Bandit Captured.
Vallejo, Cal., June 17.—Fred Melville, the boy bandit, was captured at Benecia by Constable Hyde. The youth offered no resistance, having been wounded in the shoulder and side in the battle with three sheriff's possees. The youth said he fled from his hilltop stronghold after he was wounded, crawling through the lines of watchers. Much of the youth's bravado had vanished.

Chloroform and Rob Foreigners.
Erie, Pa., June 17.—Six armed bandits visited the camp of laborers in Bessemer road, near Erie, and chloroformed 20 or more of the men, escaping with over $2,000. Two of the bandits are scouring the country in search of the bandits. There are about 50 laborers living at the camp, many of them being foreigners.

Explosion Of Maine Was Terrific

Wreck of Maine In Worse Condition Than Anticipated.

Havana, June 17.—Despite the fact that the partial exposure to view the wreck of the battleship Maine shows the hull to be in a much worse damaged condition than supposed, Major Ferguson of the engineering force announced that this would hardly make it necessary to change the plans for the removal of the wreck.

A depth of more than 10 feet was reached in the work of pumping water from the cofferdam. Every recession of the water shows more terribly the effects of the explosion, although nothing has yet been found to indicate conclusively the nature of the explosion.

Aviators For State Fair.
Columbus, O., June 17.—The state board of agriculture at its meeting Monday will hear propositions from representatives of three airship men to furnish attractions for the state fair this fall. Roy Knabenshue, representing Wright Brothers; Charles J. Strobel and a representative of the American Aeroplane company of New York are expected here.

Summoned by Wireless.
Buffalo, June 17.—The steamer City of Cleveland, Captain A. J. McKay, reached Buffalo with the 225 passengers of the Western States who had been transhipped during the night at the western end of Lake Erie, after an accident to the latter vessel. Wireless summoned the City of Cleveland, nine miles away, when a cylinder blew out on the Western States.

Fabulous Riches Come In a Night

Oxnard Tells of Sale of Plant to Sugar Trust.

Washington, June 17.—The story of the birth of the beet sugar industry in America, its trials and temptations ever since, and how the Oxnard Brothers were enriched by more than $500,000 profit over night through the little transaction of selling their cane sugar factory in Brandon to the first sugar trust in fact, were the features in the testimony that Henry T. Oxnard gave to the house sugar investigation committee.

Thompson Must Stand Trial.
Washington, June 17.—District Judge Wright overruling a demurrer ordered Peter G. Thompson, millionaire paper manufacturer of Hamilton, O., to stand trial on a charge of bribery. It is alleged that Thompson, president of the Champion Coated Paper company, sent a $100 bill to Major W. P. Santinger, passing on cardboard submitted for sale to the postoffice department.

LA FOLLETTE IS TOLD TO MIND HIS BUSINESS DEMOCRATS DECLINE PLAN

Republican Senator From Wisconsin Receives a Severe Jolt for His Coalition Scheme—Colleagues Can't See It and Democrats Stick to Their Own Theories.

Brings Good Word To Taft

Boise Penrose Sure Reciprocity Will Pass Senate.

Washington, June 17.—Senator Penrose, chairman of the senate finance committee, gave the most cheering news concerning a vote on the reciprocity bill which has been distributed about the White House this summer. He said in about two weeks things should have so settled themselves in the senate that it would be possible to determine the date of the vote on the measure. Senator Penrose is confident that the bill will pass, and without the Root amendment.

New York Woman Killed.
New York, June 17.—While she was working in a restaurant in Williamsburg, a 20-year-old girl was shot and killed by a man who entered the place and asked her to come with him. The police were informed that the man who did the shooting was John Omega 32, who is married and has two children.

DEMOCRATS LIKE OWN POLICY

Wisconsin Insurgent Promised Eleven Votes to Help Defeat Reciprocity Measure and Pass Certain House Tariff Bills, but Terms Were Not Acceptable to Senate Minority. Not Discouraged and Will Prepare Tariff Revision Bill of His Own.

Washington, June 17.—Senator La Follette's plan for a coalition between the Democrats and certain insurgent Republicans to defeat Canadian reciprocity and pass certain of the house tariff bills has hit the rocks and been abandoned to its fate on the dead sea of political ambition. Senator La Follette has been trying to get some sort of an understanding with the Democratic senators for concerted action. He told some of the Democrats that he believed he could deliver 11 votes from the insurgent band.

But it was very evident before the movement had gone far that there were enough Democrats to look with disfavor on it to prevent the success of the plan. The senator from Wisconsin then took a new tack. He announced that he would prepare a bill making a general revision downward of many important tariff schedules, and he conferred with some of the Democratic senators about getting support for it.

Did Not Need Leadership.

There have always been a few Democratic senators disposed to follow Senator La Follette, but it was plain that a majority of them were not of that mind. Finally some of the Democratic leaders in the senate told Mr. La Follette that the Democratic party had a policy of its own for dealing with the tariff question, and that it was being worked out in the house along well-defined lines, with the approval of the Democrats in the senate, and they did not need the leadership of Mr. La Follette, preferring to follow their own leaders.

Undismayed by these words, the senator from Wisconsin went about the work of preparing his tariff measure, which he will offer as an amendment at the proper time. He is preparing an exhaustive speech, which will probably be delivered in the senate the latter part of next week or early in the week following.

RUSH UNDERWOOD BILL

House Works Overtime to Reach Vote on Wool Schedule.

Washington, June 17.—In an effort to hurry along general debate on the Underwood wool revision bill so that a vote may be had on the measure early next week, the house of representatives remained in session, with only a brief recess for dinner. Representatives Longworth of Ohio and Weeks of Massachusetts attacked the measure, and several Democrats, including Representatives Ayres of New York, Oldfield of Arkansas and Macon of Arkansas defended it. Mr. Macon in the course of his speech paid high tribute to William Jennings Bryan.

Mr. Ayres read a letter from the Nebraskan declaring that the Underwood bill was better than the present schedule K, better than a Republican house would approve, but not up to the mark that a Democratic house should set.

SECRECY URGED.

Clerk, However, Tells of Finding Missing Voucher.

Washington, June 17.—Thomas Morrison, disbursing clerk of the state department, told the house committee on expenditures in that department that he had been instructed, when the missing voucher in the Day portrait case under investigation was found on the floor of his office a few days ago, to keep still about the discovery. This instruction he said was given him by Wilbur J. Carr, chief of the consular bureau.

Four Republicans and Four Democrats Will Conduct the New Lorimer Election Inquiry.

The subcommittee of the senate committee on privileges and elections which will make the new investigation into the case of Senator Lorimer will begin work on June 22. The subcommittee consists of Senators Dillingham, chairman; Gamble, Jones, Kenyon, Johnston, Fletcher, Kern and Lea—four Republicans and four Democrats. Four are said to be pro-Lorimer and four anti-Lorimer. Sessions will be held in Washington, Chicago, Springfield and Duluth.

Death and Disaster Rage Claiming Half Dozen Victims

Village of Mt. Sterling Experiences a Rapid Succession of Accidents for Two Hours Yesterday--One Fatality Results From Fall of Aged Man From Haymow--An Unusual Story.

Whether it was "bad luck Friday" or a genuine case of "hoodoo", our neighboring city of Mt. Sterling certainly broke all its records in a series of accidents that happened within two hours yesterday.

Mr. Jonathan Taylor, an aged and wealthy citizen of near Mt. Sterling, fell from a haymow, breaking his back. He died some hours later.

Mr. Jay Beale, had a narrow escape from an enraged steer, which kicked him a terrible blow in the stomach, and causing great suffering, although it is not thought to be a matter of permanent injury.

While walking in her yard Mrs. Fred Albright tripped and fell, breaking her arm.

Mr. Clay Johnson is also carrying his right arm in a sling, having the bone broken while attempting to crank his auto.

The eight-year-old son of Mr. Chas. Walters came to grief on his bicycle, by some untoward luck, catching one toe in the wheel, which ground it to pieces. The accident caused horrible pain and the little fellow was in bad shape for a while.

At the Southward home, in the country near Mt. Sterling, a little girl drank Lewis Iye and only the most heroic efforts saved her life.

Six accidents of such character and all happening within two hours is enough to stir up things and Mt. Sterling was agog with excitement last evening, when the day's mishaps began to be noised abroad.

Jurors Make Affidavit Admit Misunderstanding Effect of Verdict

Two jurors in the Kerns Thompson vs. John Campbell case, have made affidavit that they misunderstood the import or trend of the verdict rendered in the case in which $17 was allowed the defendant.

This adds new interest to the circumstances surrounding the decision of the jury, and the case in general. The affidavits were submitted by Attorney C. A. Reid in his petition for a new trial, and read to the court.

The affidavits are identical excepting the name of the affiant which appears in the blank space.

Both affidavits are as follows with the name of the juror who makes it appearing in the blank spaces:

..... being sworn says that he is one of the jurors in the trial of the case of Kerns Thompson vs. John Campbell, above set forth, that affiant at the time of the return of the verdict in said cause did not know and understand the effect thereof as he has since learned it; that said sum of $17.00, returned in said verdict was the total damage found by said jury against plaintiff on the counterclaim of defendant, and was determined by allowing $1.00 per acre for his half of the corn in stumpy land, and half being 17 acres; that the jury allowed no other or further damages to defendant on his claim in his answer; that affiant and as he believes other jurors understood and believed that the court would deduct such amount from the amount of $51.00, that the defendant admitted he owed the plaintiff, leaving a balance of $34.00, due on plaintiff's claim; that said jury did not in its deliberations determine that the defendant owed plaintiff nothing on account of rents claimed in his petition, but fully understood that he admitted $51.00, of such amount; that affiant believes as he is now informed that the verdict returned by said jury is not a correct verdict expressing the finding and judgment of said jury on all the issues in said action."

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this 14th day of June, 1911.

C. A. REID,
Notary Public.

The case now presents a peculiar legal tangle which is considerably out of the ordinary and is puzzling attorneys and the court.

Kidnaped Girl Sent Back Home

Rosie Puff, a girl 16 years of age but appearing much older, was found wandering through the alleys in Hillsboro Thursday night, and when taken in hands by the police told a strange story of how she had been kidnaped by gypsies while taking a walk near her home in Athens. The girl stated that three weeks ago she was kidnaped and carried away, and has since been a prisoner until the first of the week when she escaped and has been working her way homeward.

Her careworn face tells the story of her treatment at the hands of the band of fiends among whom she had fallen. Her parents at Athens were communicated with, and she was sent home.

Mexican War Veteran Attends Reunion

Mr. B. F. Jacobs, aged 87 years, of Parrott's Station, one of the very few remaining ex-soldiers of the Mexican war, has been in Newark this week attending a reunion of the old veterans, making the trip by himself.

Mr. Jacobs is probably the only living Mexican war veteran in the county, and has few companions in the state. He is active to a remarkable degree for one of his advanced years, and although very young when he fought for the flag in Mexico, has many stories to relate on the war in the Aztec country. Mr. Jacobs is the father of Frank Jacobs, the contractor and builder.

Greenfield Wants Armory Building

Capt. Gray, Lieutenant Haines and Senator Doster have been working for a state armory for Greenfield, and there is some assurance that their plans will meet with success. The promise of a splendid building is said to have been obtained providing Greenfield will do her part toward obtaining the armory.

Washington has a better chance of obtaining an armory than our smaller neighbor, and if Greenfield lands an armory first, it will be because Washington is asleep and the prize goes elsewhere because she is not as progressive as her neighbors.

Farmers Combine Purchase Thresher

Ten prominent farmers of the Staunton neighborhood have combined to purchase a complete threshing outfit.

In the combine are Messrs. I. N. Lowe, Ed Sheridan, Lewis Mark, Elmer Rowe, Mack Post, Henry Minton, Wert Rogers, Dave Biminger, Willis Wikle, Judy Lounder.

All over the county in recent years farmers have been organizing to purchase these outfits, realizing that it is for their mutual interests in the insuring of garnered crops.

The entire outfit consists of a 16 horse power "Advance" engine, 30 x 18 Advance separator, wagon loader, feeders and blower.

The deal was closed with the Fayette County Hardware Co., late Friday night, and these farmers will have the outfit in ample time for the approaching harvest.

Mistakes Were Made in Keystone Realty Advertisement

There were two mistakes in the Keystone Realty Company's advertisement of last night. One was due to an oversight in the writer and the other to the man who set it up in the office. The sentence: "There will be ten houses built here within a year," should read, "There will perhaps be ten houses built here within a year." People who expect to build houses don't always get them built as soon as they have planned. The other sentence, "The shrewdest real estate speculators in town are reserving lots," should read, "The shrewdest real estate speculators in town are reserving lots."

THE OLD HOTEL PROPERTY AT SULPHUR LICK SPRINGS DECREE TO CURTIS BAKER

The case of Arvilla Baxter and Alice Ellis of Cincinnati against Geo. C. Rowe, Curtis Baker and others, claiming an undivided interest in the property and hotel at Sulphur Lick, which was ready for trial Friday morning in the Ross county Common Pleas court, and was decided by the court, all parties agreeing to waive trial by jury.

The plaintiff who claims to be heirs at law of Alida Jenkins, admitted that Curtis Baker, who has been in undisputed possession of the property for 22 years, was entitled to only five-sixths of the property.

The court held that the plaintiffs and co-defendants with Baker, had no claim in the property, whatever, and that it belonged to Curtis Baker, Baker was given the relief asked for and the costs were assessed against the plaintiffs.

Artistic Concert Well Attended

Nature moderated her chilly drizzle and granted clear skies for the concert at the Presbyterian church last evening.

The audience assembled was not only large, but one representative of the musical culture and highly complimentary to the artists who appeared on the program.

Miss Carrie Elliott, of Cincinnati, a soprano, who has been heard with pleasure in our city before, was assisted by Miss Helen May Curtis, reader, Mrs. Alex. Ballard, accompanist and Mrs. Ben Davis, organist.

Miss Elliott won unqualified admiration in her command of vocal technique and the tonal sweetness and sympathy of her voice. She is artistic to a rare degree and an unaffected personality and gracious manner enhances the charm of her singing.

Probably the two songs that made the greatest appeal to the audience were Tindelli's "Cousine D'Amore" and "Beloved, It Is Morn", Florence Aylward, but Miss Elliott's entire program was one admirably chosen. Her first number was a brilliant composition, "It Is Springtime," by Miss Grace Gardner.

Mrs. Ballard was a perfect accompanist.

Miss Curtis is a very pleasing reader, her beautifully modulated voice of a musical quality. Her program was delightfully varied, the humorous predominating. One of her most effective readings was "The Day in June", James Russell Lowell, with musical accompaniment, Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," by Mrs. Ballard.

Mrs. Davis contributed no small share to the evening's program in two organ solos, the opening one, "Grand Choeur", Bistie, very brilliant and her farewell number, Harker's "In the Twilight," full of exquisite harmonies, beautifully brought out.

The chancel was most artistically decorated in great bowls of ascension lilies, asparagus phormosa and palms, and young girls, in white gowns served as ushers.

Christian Endeavor Annual Convention

Because of their leading rank in size among all conventions held in this state, the annual gatherings of Christian Endeavorers of Ohio always possess great news interest.

Two facts make this year's convention, which will be held in Cleveland on June 29-30, of unusual importance: It meets in Ohio's greatest city and it celebrates the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor movement. There are now about 2000 societies in the state, and from present indications we expect at least 3000 delegates to be registered.

The speakers are: "Billy" Sunday, Rev. J. Knox Montgomery, D. D., president of Muskingum college, New Concord, Ohio; Melvin E. Trotter, superintendent of the City Rescue Mission, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Rev. Isaac Taylor Headland, D. D., a Missionary of the M. E. church in China; Rev. A. S. Gregg, Cleveland superintendent of the International Reform Bureau; Hon. John G. Wooley, Madison, Wis.; Rev. Frances E. Clark, D. D., LL. D.; Mr. A. J. Shartie, Boston, Mass.; C. H. Hubbell, D. D.; Rev. Ira Landrith, D. D., LL. D., President of Belmont College, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Margaret Koch, West Eden, Maine, Field Secretary Maine C. E. Union.

INFLUENCING THE PRESS.

Just now Colliers' Weekly is waging a sensational warfare on purchased news articles and purchased editorial comment insisting that if the newspapers do not pry themselves out of the rut into which they have fallen that the knell of independent journalism in America has rung.

The first "horrible example" of the business influenced newspaper which Colliers' exposes to view is Wm. R. Hearst's New York Journal. The assertion is made that a certain amount of advertising in the columns of the Journal is good for an editorial by Arthur Brisbane, that master of the art of editorial writing, to whom Mr. Hearst pays a larger salary than the president of the nation receives.

Mr. Hearst denies the charges in toto and has instituted a suit in the New York courts, asking that he be awarded the small sum of half a million dollars damages against the publishers of Colliers.

Without regard to the truth or falsity of the charges made against the Journal, sober thinking publishers and editors have long been cognizant of the existence of a pressure on the part of big business to color materially if not to control absolutely the news and editorial columns of the newspapers by the amount of advertising patronage extended.

The business of publishing newspapers has grown steadily, during the decade or two last past, into more of a real business proposition than it was formerly.

It costs a vast deal more money now to run a newspaper than it did a quarter of a century ago, consequently capital has turned its attention to the business with the result that the business office which now must be conducted on business principles as those principles are understood in the business of today, has more and more encroached upon the heretofore sacred precincts of the editorial and news columns.

How far this attempt has succeeded is, of course a question which cannot now be answered, but that some considerable measure of success has crowned the efforts in the larger cities of the lands seems to be true because of the general spread of the efforts into all parts of the country.

Shakespeare has Hamlet to soliloquize, "Thus does conscience make towards of us all." Today the melancholy Dane might well add that the need of or the love of money does make cowards of us all.

Driven to the wall by competition, sharp and merciless as it is these days, it is not uncommon to see the press in even the smaller cities and towns groveling at the feet of some blatant official or some business, coloring the editorial columns and the news columns to meet the demands of the business office in its frantic endeavor to make everything secondary to the acquisition of that business which brings in the money.

It will be a sad day for American journalism, one of the most highly prized creatures of liberty, when the people come to believe or when they know, if they ever do, that news and editorial opinion is paid for and manufactured for a price in money no matter how indirectly the consideration is paid. When that time comes our greatest and grandest institution will have crashed into a mass of useless wreckage.

For the sake of the people, for the sake of the nation and the beloved institutions which have been born and have thrived under our constitution it is to be hoped that the conditions are not as bad as they have been painted, and that the attempt to influence the American press may be halted and turned back before the people lose confidence in the greatest weapon of liberty.

THE OLD AND THE YOUNG.

Many people are just beginning to realize another striking illustration of the truth of the old "shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves" theory and it is simply this:

We have, nearly all of us, noted how profoundly ill at ease and "not at home" the newly rich people are in the upper crusts of society to which their money has gained them admission.

This is undeniably true of the mothers and fathers, but few of us have noted that the daughters and sons of these "newly rich" are as a rule better educated, better mannered and, in every way appear better bred than those who have been born into the society of the purple. This is of course, due in a measure to the fact that great care has been exercised in raising them and a large amount of money expended in educating and polishing them, whatever that means.

Primarily it is due, however, to the fact that these young folks are but recently from the world where the genuine counts for more than the counterfeit, and where the atmosphere is not wholly saturated by an air of false living and where men and women have more important real things to do than playing a part.

The decadence in the daughters and sons of the rich may be accounted for in the fact that theirs has been a hot house existence where real life is unknown and every man and woman plays a part in order to accomplish a not very important end, in short where life is a sham and a mockery.

No matter what care has been taken to counteract it the affect of every-day surrounding and every-day-living will tell on the young and impressionable.

POETRY FOR TODAY

I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER.

I remember, I remember;
The house where I was born.
The sight of that lop-sided shack
Today would make me mourn;
The crooked little brick-paved walk,
The hen house in the rear,
With cabbage growing at the side,
And pigsty rather near.

I remember, I remember,
The corn-cob father had;
(A five-cent piece of Navy Plug
In those days made him glad.)
The old stove in the kitchen,
And father's stockinged feet—
All that was ere prosperity
Swept us on East street.

I remember, I remember,
The pump in our back yard,
Where father watered all the stock
And found it rather hard.
But now he has another way
And needs no trough or pump;
He waters stock down in the street
And makes the lambskins jump.

I remember, I remember—
But oh! The changes wrought
Are queerer than the little Duke
That Sister Helen bought!
Since father goes to 20 clubs
And mother has her set,
We have no use for Mem'ry's art—
We're trying to forget—
—New York Times.

SPOILED THE PIECE.

Clifford was rather a forward child for five years, but it was deemed safe to give him a place on the program of a Sunday school entertainment in the hope that his first appearance before the public might awe him into decent behavior. He delivered his little piece so well that those who knew him best were already breathing freer; but, alas, for earthly hopes! Clifford had come to the end of his lines, and instead of the conventional way of exit, he was swinging his arms preparatory to a leap from the three-foot platform, and with the words, "I bet you I can jump off of here," he forthwith proceeded to do so.

Converting a Skeptic.

David Hume, the famous Scottish philosopher and skeptic, once for a short time involuntarily posed as an out and out Christian, and the story of very temporary conversion to orthodoxy is amusing.

Having fallen into a swamp at the back of Edinburgh castle, he called for assistance to a woman who was passing. At first she took no notice, but presently she asked:

"Are na ye Hume, the atheist?"
"Weel, weel, no matter," Hume said. "Christian charity commands you to do good to every one."

"Christian charity here or Christian charity there," the woman said, "I'll do naething for you till you turn a Christian yourself—ye maun repeat the Lord's Prayer and the Creed or faith I'll let ye graze i' grovels there as I found ye."
And he had to repeat them.

Deeds of Aspiration.

What though your lot in life seems poor and small?
What though in great accomplishment you fall?
Let not the thought of this your soul appal
Nor think your days are spent without avail.

A noble aspiration is a deed
Though unobserved, and he who judges men
Upon his lofty throne will give it heed,
And all will be rewarded as they plan.
—John Kendrick Bangs.

The Difference Between Them.

Joseph H. Choate and Chauncey Depew were invited to a dinner. Mr. Choate was to speak, and it fell to the lot of Mr. Depew to introduce him, which he did thus: "Gentlemen, permit me to introduce Ambassador Choate, America's most inveterate after dinner speaker. All you need to do to get a speech out of Mr. Choate is to open his mouth, drop in a dinner and up comes your speech."

Mr. Choate thanked the senator for his compliment and then said, "Mr. Depew says if you will open my mouth and drop in a dinner up will come a speech, but I warn you that if you open your mouths and drop in one of Senator Depew's speeches up will come your dinners."

A Frank Reply.

Walter I. Smith, who recently became judge of the Eighth judicial circuit, enjoys a good story even when it is at his own expense. He had a warm contest in the primaries when he was candidate for re-election to congress in 1910, his opponent being one of the insurgents. He had few votes to spare for the nomination.

"Before the election," said Judge Smith, "I wrote a letter to all the Republicans in the district. In it I urged them to come out and vote, saying that 9,000 Republicans failed to vote at the primaries and that if they failed to vote on election day it might mean disaster to the party. I asked the person to whom the letter was addressed to vote and also to get his neighbors to do the same, closing with the statement that it would be a great help to the Republican party and I should regard it as a personal favor to myself.

"Among the replies I received was a copy of my own letter with a blue pencil mark round the words '9,000 Republicans failed to vote at the primaries,' and this written at the bottom, 'It's a good thing for you they did!'"

A Disturbed Taste.

The neighbors having dropped in informally upon the Suthrons during the evening, Mrs. Suthron suggests that if her husband will gather some mint from the mint bed in the garden she will mix for them a genuine Kentucky julep. Mr. Suthron, who has indulged in a matter of seven or eight genuine Kentucky juleps prior to the arrival of the guests, goes willingly in search of the desired garnishment for the drink. He remains in the garden quite awhile, and finally the others go out to ascertain what causes the delay.

"Why don't you bring the mint, dear?" his wife calls.

From somewhere in the darkness comes the testy response:

"Jane, I've eaten my way twice around this lot. I've chewed geranium leaves, grass, catnip, tulips, onions, sage and burdock, but blamed if I can find a sprig of mint anywhere."—National Monthly.

Our Grocery Clerk

Says, "Solid Ivory"

It's lucky for that errand boy ours that he's a son of a friend of the boss. He really has me wondering sometimes how one kid can make so many mistakes.

His latest break almost lost us old Charley Martin, an eccentric old geezer, but one of our best customers.

Old man Martin came into the shop this morning looking as if his last friend on earth had departed for parts unknown. It appeared that his favorite dog, a rusty looking old animal that he'd had for fourteen years, turned over and died last night.

Well, he went to look out the door while I was wrapping up his order. When I had it all done up in my usual professional manner, I gave it to the errand boy to hand to the old fellow. Of course he has to hand him the wrong package.

"Maybe you've guessed it? What the old man got home and undid that bundle he found four pounds of frankfurters. And his dog—as I say, it's good and lucky for that kid he's the son of a friend of the boss."

Nearly a Joke.

The humorist was in a brown study. "I'll get it yet," he muttered.
"What's the matter dear?" his wife inquired. "You seem to be puzzled about something."

"Yes, the jokesmith replied, "I'm trying to make a 'stitch in time' joke about the girl who is darning the clocks in her stockings."—Youngstown Telegram.

Might Be Saved.

A Kansas butcher was driving a cow to his slaughter house when a stranger stopped him and said, "What are you going to do with that cow?"
"I'm going to kill her," said the butcher.

Embarrassing.

"Your wife wants you on the telephone," announced the new boy in an office where the phones of two separate companies were installed.
"Which one?" inquired the boss, thinking of the two telephones, of course.
"Please, sir," said the boy, "I don't know how many you have."—Brooklyn Life.

MAJOR JAMES F. COOK ANSWERS FINAL SUMMONS FUNERAL NEXT MONDAY

Mayor James F. Cook, pioneer Fayette countian, valiant soldier and genial gentleman, answered the eternal summons shortly before the midnight hour Friday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Adams.

Major Cook had attained the ripe old age of 76 years, and until his seventieth year had never known an ill day. The past winter his health declined steadily and during the past few months his daughter realized that his days were numbered, and his three sons, Messrs Isaac, James and Jack Cook, of St. Louis, Mo., have joined with her in giving all the devoted care possible. The sons summoned hastily from St. Louis arrived just in time to be with their father when he peacefully entered his last long sleep.

Major James F. Cook, pioneer notable career in the army, where he held the position of major in the 90th O. V. I., returning upon the close of the war to the Cook neighborhood where the Cook family were extensively engaged in farming.

After leaving the farm to make his residence in this city, Major Cook became prominently identified with Fayette county politics, holding the position of county treasurer for two terms, and of county sheriff three terms.

Out of a family of seven children he leaves but two sisters, Mrs. Milo Rockwell, of this city, and Mrs. Mary Marcy, of Mt. Sterling, who is now in California.

The funeral services will be held at the residence Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

LOWEST DEATH RATE HELD BY UNCLE SAM

Washington, June 17.—The Public Health and Marine hospital service has just completed an exhaustive set of mortality statistics from the entire world, showing that, barring earthquakes, Messina, Italy, is the most healthful place on the globe.

So far as sickness is concerned the annual death rate there is only 9.87 out of every 1000.

The Emerald fields of Ireland, for all their beauty, are not particularly conducive to longevity, according to the report. The annual death rate of the entire island is 29.3 per 1000. In the celebrated town of Kilkenny the percentage mounts to 44.2 per 1000.

From the report it would seem that Great Britain is rather unfortunate from a mortality standpoint in all her possessions, with the exception of England and Wales. In South Africa, for instance, the average rate is about 27.7 per 1000 and even in rugged Scotland it is 17 per 1000.

Reports from various other countries show mortality averages ranging from 16 to 22 per cent, or higher.

Considering all the reports together, the certain conclusion is that if one would live long, he had better stay in the United States. Here the average death rate for the last year was only 13.5 per 1000 and modern hygienic methods are expected soon to reduce these figures, for a nation of 90,000,000 people, to a percentage less than that of little Messina. And the United States has very few earthquakes, too.

The Old Man Knew "Latin"

The story is told that the father of one of the handsome graduates of the Greenfield High school found the following Latin poem written on the fly leaf of her school book:

"Boyibus kissibus,
Sweeti girlorum,
Gribibus likibus,
Wanti semorum."

Being somewhat long on Latin himself the father wrote below the sonnet the following verse:

"Papibus hearibus,
Soundus sonorum,
Kickibus boyibus,
Oute de dorum."

Pomerene Whets Knife For Fight on Trusts

The Prosecution Resolution

Columbus, O., June 17.—Arriving in Columbus from Washington to aid Prosecuting Attorney Krichbaum of Stark county in arguing the criminal case of Ohio against W. L. Davis, in an endeavor to reverse a ruling of the court knocking out a five-year penitentiary sentence imposed on Davis in the common pleas court for abstraction of funds and credits of a bank, Senator Pomerene said he would devote most of his time now to fighting for the adoption of his resolution directing Attorney General Wickersham to bring criminal prosecution against the Standard Oil and tobacco trust officials for violating the laws of the country. He said that his speech in the senate was the opening of his fight against the trust officials who are flagrantly violating the laws.

PERFUMED FRUIT.

Five Fingered Oranges Small Sweet, but Are Not Good to Eat.

A most weird looking fruit is the five fingered orange. It grows in exactly the shape of a half open hand. Even the nails are identical, hard pointed and claw-like, tipping the orange flowers with a length equal, in some cases, to three inches.

It is no freak, but a proper kind of orange, belonging to a special variety. The tree itself is a rugged little shrub that does not average more than five or six feet in height in its native home, Japan. It does not grow straight, as the ordinary orange tree should, but is curved in all directions.

Even the branches grow in spiral or twisted forms, so that the width of the tree is often greater than the height. The fruit itself is of a pale yellow color, of a pure lemon hue, growing greenish toward the stem. The size is immense, considering the smallness of the tree, the largest ones measuring when mature fully ten inches from the wrist to the point of the middle finger, including the nail.

But the fruit is not good to eat, though what it lacks in flavor it more than makes good in perfume. Perhaps the strangest thing about this perfume is that it is the fruit and not the flower that is odorous.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Macgregors.

The Macgregors were forbidden to use their family name in 1663. The proscription was removed by Charles II., only to be inflicted again in the reign of William and Mary. It was not till 1822 that a royal license to use the name was granted to Sir Charles Macgregor, up to then known as "Murray." In the early years of the seventeenth century every man's hand was raised against this persecuted race and they could be mutilated and slain with impunity.—London Spectator.

A Turkish Riddle.

Here is an old Turkish riddle which has been handed down for many centuries and yet has never been answered: "There was once a beggar who always dreamed he was a pasha, and there was a pasha who always dreamed he was a beggar. Which was the happier?"

Schenk Scandal Is Second To Henkle Case

Detectives Promise Sensation In Henkle Case.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 17.—After working on the Henkle poisoning case with Detective W. B. Matthews of Delaware, O., Chief of Police Warren Hastings announced that a new line of evidence has been turned up that "will make the Henkle scandal at Delaware more sensational than the Schenk affair in this city."

Aided by the city department, Detective Matthews spent the day in interviewing former neighbors of Mrs. Jessie Henkle, charged with poisoning her stepdaughter, and in interviewing the physicians who treated Mrs. Henkle's husband, Edgar Way, whose death here resulted from a bad form of lead poisoning.

Will Leave Delaware.

Delaware, O., June 17.—Myrtle Henkle, 21-year-old daughter of John D. Henkle, who caused the arrest of her stepmother, Mrs. Jessie Way-Henkle, on the charge of attempting to kill her by means of arsenic poison, stated that she would leave Delaware shortly. She refused to make known her destination or time of departure, but intimated that she would be gone until the sensational poisoning case comes up before the grand jury in September.

An Excellent Ration When Properly Balanced.

Some feeders complain that horses fed on a crushed corn and cob ration appear subject to attacks of gastric colic, and such will be the case if this is made the one item entering into their daily feed, writes M. Coverdell in the Farm Journal.

The dry, woody consistency of the cob in crushed corn is what causes the trouble. The combination is naturally less digestible than purely grain rations and these will remain in the stomach too long unless something is done to move it on. Horses that are idle or stand in stall a goodly portion of the time are more liable to be attacked by ailments brought on by the use of the corn and cob meal than those animals which are worked or in other ways secure plenty of open air exercise.

We never under any circumstances make the corn and cob meal the entire ration for horses, but add a quart or more of oats, bran, etc., to act as a laxative for keeping the cob portion of the feed on the move. Even two or three ears of whole corn will serve the purpose of furnishing a greater amount of grain and inducing more mastication. This is all that is necessary, and by closely watching the manure passing from the animals one can best tell the proper amount of laxative feeds to give. Where too much of the corn and cob meal is being fed for the health of the animals their manure becomes hard and dark colored when it should be moderately soft and of a bright golden cast. Too much roughage is also to be guarded against when the corn and cob ration is fed, as considerable roughage will be extracted from the cob portion of the feed.

Points of a Good Cow.

A good milk cow has broad hind quarters and thin fore quarters, thin and deep neck, pointed withers, head pointed between the horns, flat and fine boned legs and fine hair. Choose one with udder well forward and teats wide apart and large enough to be easily grasped. A medium sized cow will give the most milk in proportion to the food she eats.

JURY IN GREEN CASE FAILS TO REACH VERDICT MAY END THE CASE

In the criminal case of the State of Ohio against Alfred Green which occupied the Common Pleas court 2 days and well into Friday night, during which time every inch of the way was closely contested by the attorneys, and a score of witnesses were heard, the jury, after being out over six hours, disagreed and was discharged. It is possible the case is at an end.

Attorney E. L. Bush represented the defendant, and Gregg and Gregg the State. Alfred Green is from Green township near Buena Vista, and was indicted for receiving stolen property, consisting of a pair of rubber boots, etc. The case grew out of a charge of stealing chickens preferred against Curtis Cotton and Olhe Green, the latter a son of Alfred Green, and which resulted in young Green being sent to the Boys' Industrial School, and the Cotton boy serving a jail sentence.

It has been some time since a case was as closely fought as the case against Green, and the attorneys indulged in numerous tilts over various features of the case. Judge Carpenter charged the jury and they withdrew to deliberate at four o'clock Friday evening, and late in the evening returned a conditional verdict which Judge Carpenter refused to accept.

cept, because, it is alleged, of its unusual nature.

Shortly before ten o'clock the jury was called in and the jurors asked if they were about ready to reach a decision. A possibility of such an action was manifested, and they were sent back for further deliberation. After ten o'clock they were again called in, and had come to no decision. This time the court polled the jury and without exception they expressed themselves as being of the belief that no decision could be reached and were discharged. It is said that the first vote taken by the jury stood six for acquittal and six for conviction, and that when eight for acquittal and four conviction was reached, the jury hung.

An amusing incident came to light after the jury had been discharged. When the jurors were called in before ten o'clock, the HERALD reporter who had covered the case in which the same jury practically had become confused over just what the verdict meant, was sitting in the court room, patiently waiting their action. When the jury returned to the jury room some one jokingly moved that the reporter be hanged, but part of the jurors were not in favor of this, and another disagreement occurred.

GIRL FOLLOWS FATHER LIVES AT GOOD HOPE THOUGHT KIDNAPED

The Hillsboro Dispatch tells the following pathetic story, one of the principal actors in which resides near Good Hope in this county:

Danville was the scene of much excitement Wednesday afternoon, when sixteen-year-old Helen Burton could not be found and it was thought she had been kidnaped.

The girl is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Burton. That day her father, George Tolly, who lives with his son-in-law at Good Hope, had been to visit her for the first time in four years. He had started to this city to spend the night and had been gone half an hour when she was missed. A searching party found her half walking, half running, near town.

When asked to return she protested, saying she wanted to go with her father. During his stay with her she had talked to him but little and was very undemonstrative. This is the first time she has ever been dissatisfied.

Tolly, when told of the occurrence, said he was not able to keep her, and expressed himself as more than satisfied with the care accorded her. The mother is dead.

Harve Smith Is a "Prospect"

Since the publication of the Mayoralty prospects on Friday, it has come to light that Mr. Harve Smith, of the Smith Bros. restaurant, is among the prospects for the mayoralty race.

When approached on the matter Mr. Smith did not deny that he had the matter under consideration, but stated the probability of his entering the field was rather doubtful, as he would not enter the contest unless he felt sure of winning, and that if Mayor Allen sought re-election, that he would, in all probability, be a hard one to beat.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENT AT CHILlicothe SOMETHING LIKE MILLION DOLLARS IN BETTERMENTS

Over in Chillicothe the railroads either voluntarily do things right for some reason or other or else there has been a way found by the people of the ancient capital to make them do what is right.

The Chillicothe News Advertiser is responsible for this statement of fact relating to the improvements on the N. & W. in Chillicothe:

The work of double tracking being done by the N. & W. through the city is a revelation to those who have not seen it. The improvements in the city alone have cost the company over $1,000,000.

The road crosses Eastern avenue above the grade, but to compensate for this a macadam roadway has been built and a new street opened on the east side of the track from Eastern avenue to Seventh street, where the railroad goes over a cement viaduct, which is complete in every respect and the road leading to it has also macadamized and concrete retaining walls built to protect property on Sugar street, where the grade is lowered. The old Fifth street basin has been filled up and a storm water sewer constructed from that point to Paint creek and which drains that part of the city.

The tracks at the passenger station are set over to the east about ten feet. An umbrella shed from Paint to Fourth street is to be built for the protection of passengers and baggage.

Crossing Main street and the B. & O. and street railroad tracks the N. & W. tracks have been built on a concrete foundation three or four feet deep.

The old freight depot which stood between Main and Second street, has been torn down and a new $20,000 brick depot erected on Main street, just west of the Union Shoe Co. plant. This has ample trackage on the west and on the east from Main to Second has been paved with brick to accommodate teams hauling local freight. This is said to be the best and handsomest freight station on the Scioto division.

One noticeable feature of all N. & W. work is, that everything is done the best possible and is put in to stay.

And it is safe to say that the volume of business done with the railroads at the Chillicothe office does not so far excel that transacted at this point as to justify a discrimination which gives Chillicothe $1,000,000 in betterments and Washington practically nothing.

Milk Paste a Beauty Mask.

Skimmed sweet milk heated and mixed to a thick paste with oatmeal which has been ground very fine makes a delightful beauty mask and will soften and whiten the skin with one hour's wearing. Buttermilk can be used in place of the sweet milk for more pronounced bleaching effects, and the temperature of the milk should be as warm as can be applied with perfect comfort. It is always a mistake to use any remedy for the face too hot, as it only serves to make the skin sensitive, and will cause more harm than good. Bathing the hands in warm sweet milk is said to be better for cleansing purposes than soap and water and will keep the skin soft and pliable.

BERLIN (Special)—The sudden resignation of the present American ambassador to the Imperial German court, Dr. David J. Hill and the necessity of choosing a suitable successor for this important post have given rise to lively discussion concerning the characteristics of the American diplomatic service.

Since the news of Dr. Hill's departure from office was cabled from Washington several hundred articles have been printed in all sorts and conditions of German newspapers dealing with the different features of the American diplomatic service and the points in which it differs from the systems adopted by older powers of Europe.

Some of the comments printed on American diplomats are by no means flattering, and there are many grounds for thinking that the criticisms passed on the able men who represent the United States in foreign capitals are in many cases beside the mark.

At the same time, it is always useful to ascertain what foreign observers are saying about American customs and institutions, and it would be a mistake to ignore the comments made in Germany, on the efficiency of the American diplomatic service.

Here is a very characteristic utterance, typical of many others which have been written in the same tone and have followed the same line of criticism:

"One of the outstanding features of the American diplomatic service is the lack of professional training which marks the ambassadors and ministers selected to represent the United States in the capitals of other countries.

"In this respect the trans-Atlantic republic differs from all European powers with the single exception of France, which in late years also adopted the habit of choosing its diplomats from miscellaneous sources.

"There is no definite introductory career for an American ambassador, who may step straight from his own private residence or countinghouse or business establishment into one of the most important posts in an ancient European capital. There is not a single trained diplomat in the whole American service, so that foreigners are justified in describing American ambassadors as 'amateurs.'

"It is obvious that a system of this kind produces many weaknesses never found in the diplomatic services of those countries in which the diplomats are reared from their youth upwards to be efficient representatives of their native country.

"It is a great mistake to suppose that a diplomatist needs no special training for his calling. To be an efficient diplomatist is quite as difficult as to be an efficient company director or business organizer or to follow any other occupation of an intellectual nature.

"What would American business mean if some amateur, with no knowledge of practical commercial affairs, were suddenly taken out of his own sphere and placed at the head of one of the great trusts or business organizations of the United States? What would be said if a man who had been a diplomatist all his life were suddenly called upon to control and direct the destiny of some huge industrial or commercial enterprise? Every practical American business man would say that it would be such a dangerous experiment that there would be a hundred chances to one against a fair prospect of success. Yet this is the system on which American ambassadors are chosen to fill the most important posts of the American diplomatic service; without knowledge, without training and without any experience whatever.

"How the great trans-Atlantic republic can expect, in these circumstances, that its diplomats shall do its diplomatic business efficiently is a mystery to all impartial observers of American affairs.

The fact that American diplomats are untrained amateurs leads them to be regarded with a kind of contempt or at least doubt, by the trained diplomatists of other countries, who look upon them rather as interlopers and aliens.

"It is always difficult for a man to transact business efficiently unless he commands the complete respect of those with whom he comes in contact in the course of his calling, so that the tendency among some diplomatists to look down upon American ambassadors and attaches operates to the disadvantage of the United States."

Here is a still more severe criticism.

"The entire American diplomatic service may be described as second rate. Its members are not selected for any particular qualities which fit them for their posts, but for political and personal reasons.

"To begin with, the salaries of the American ambassadors are so small and inadequate that the important posts can only be filled by men of considerable wealth. This feature alone eliminates efficiency and places plutocracy in its place.

"Moreover, America does not even select the best of her rich men to be her ambassadors abroad. If her industrial magnates and leaders of commerce could be induced to come abroad to act as ambassadors, they would of course inspire that respect which is due to their marvellous achievements in their previous spheres of activity.

As a general rule, however, American diplomatists are men of comparatively obscure achievements who are pitched into their posts owing to their monetary means and the political influence which they thereby command in their own country. It is quite clear that this diminishes the general prestige of the American diplomatic corps."

The criticisms of the American diplomatic service printed in connection with Dr. Hill's resignation in the German press have been widely copied in the newspapers of Russia, Austria, and other European countries, with the result that these unfavorable opinions of the United States foreign representatives are being scattered broadcast on this side of the Atlantic.

Why does a sailor's hornpipe

Abe Flanagan, hardly able seaman, warbled his favorite ditty as in the dim watches of the night, he held the nose of the Waldorf Astoria 62 degrees centigrade sou'by'souwest. Little recked he what was brewing.

The turbid waters of the China sea broke in musical broken china against the vessel's sides, and a school of porpoises chinned that peculiar haunting chiny from which they derive their name. It was a night for action. The red dog star of the east gleamed down on Able Flanagan menacingly. No, little recked he what was brewing!

Suddenly, with a startled cry, he sniffed. He sniffed again, with another startled cry. Sniff, sniff! He rose to his feet prepared to desert the wheel if another sniff convinced him. Sniff! Now he knew what was brewing.

With a wild cry he dashed below. 'Twas the grog that was brewing!

Daffodil Superstitions.

Daffodils are not only poisonous and libelous, but most unlucky flowers, especially when single specimens are encountered. Herrick, who must often have gone through the experience without much harm happening, declares that—

When a daffodil I see
Hanging down her head to me,
Guess I may what I must be.
First, I shall decline my head;
Secondly, I shall be dead;
Lastly, safely buried.

In Herrick's own Devon to this day if you place a single daffodil on the table of a farmhouse the farmer will jump up and exclaim, "Now we shall have no young ducks this year." The evil spell can be broken by increasing the single flower to a bunch.—St. James' Gazette.

Queer Nest of the Tontobane.

The oddest of all birds' nests is the one built by the tontobane, a South African songster. It is built of cotton and always upon the tree producing the material. In constructing the domicile the female works inside and the male outside, where he builds a sentinel box for his own special use. He sits in the box and keeps watch or sings nearly all the time, and when danger comes in the form of a hawk or a snake he warns the family, but never enters the main nest.

When Being Photographed

BE natural.

Try and keep your usual appearance as much as possible.

For instance, the woman who usually wears her hair straight need not think it necessary to arrange it in curls and puffs for the occasion.

A simple dress is the best choice, as it does not grow old-fashioned as soon as a much-trimmed gown.

Checks, plaids and all figured materials should be avoided.

As a rule materials with a sheen yield excellent results.

The greatest difficulty in being photographed is to acquire a natural expression.

A fatuous smile appears in place of a pleasant expression, and stern, compressed lips emerge when the only desire is not to appear too self-conscious.

One woman who makes an excellent photographic subject says that she recites her favorite poem all the time she is posing in order to prevent self-conscious thoughts.

The main secret of success is certainly to avoid self-consciousness in any form, and it is well to concentrate the mind on some pleasing thought, and thus forget the ordeal of posing for one's photograph.

Always Excited.

Gunner—"Some of those New York brokers are planning a thousand-foot skyscraper."

Guyer—"Great Scott! I thought enough of them were up in the air already."

High Knock.

O'Toole—"He insulted me to me face."

Harrigan—"Awn yez didn't make him measure the floor?"

O'Toole—"Bedad, no! Oi hit him so hard he measured th' ceiling."

He Was Deaf.

Father—"What is that noise in the parlor, Tommy?"

Tommy—"That's sis dropping a hint. She wants the young man to go home."
